The risk and reward indicator illustrates where the Sub-Fund is positioned in terms of its possible risk and reward. The higher the Sub-Fund's position on this scale, the greater the possible reward, but also the greater the risk of losing money. Even if the Sub-Fund is in the lowest risk class you can lose money as no investments are entirely risk free. The risk indicator is calculated using historical data and therefore cannot be used as a prediction for the future. The risk classification may change over time.

Why is this Sub-Fund in this category?

The Sub-Fund is subject to a medium/high level of risk as it is exposed to market factors such as global macro-economic trends, currency fluctuations, interest rates fluctuations, inflation and the performance of issuers of securities. At this time the level of the risk and reward profile is equal to 5.

Are there any other particular Risks?

Currency risk - The shares will be exposed to different currencies and changes in foreign exchange rates could create losses.

Operational risk - Risk of loss resulting from human errors, inadequate or failed internal systems, process or controls or from external events at the Investment Manager, Administrator and other service providers could lead to disruptions of Sub-Fund operations resulting in losses.

Liquidity risk - In difficult market conditions, the Sub-Fund may not be able to sell a security for full value which could affect performance and cause the Sub-Fund to suspend redemption of its shares.

Leverage Risk - The Sub-Fund primarily leverages its investment return with financial derivative instruments that are inherently leveraged. This makes the Sub-Fund more sensitive to certain market movements and may cause above-average volatility and risk of loss.

Discretionary management risk - The discretionary management style applied to the Sub-Fund relies on anticipating various market developments and/or security selection. There is a risk that at any given time the Sub-Fund may not be invested in the highest performing markets or securities. The Sub-Fund's net asset value may also decline.

Derivatives risk - A derivative may not perform as expected, and may create losses greater than the cost of the derivative.
